TWO to THREE MONTH OLD BABY

What Your Baby Does at 2 Months of Age:

- Recognizes different faces and voices and prefers people to objects.
- Follows movement with eyes. Enjoys watching brightly colored, three- dimensional objects.
- Opens hands more often, rather than keeping them balled in a fist.
- Likes to suck on objects. Can quiet self with sucking.
- Holds an object for a few seconds before dropping it.
- Has definite preferences for sleeping positions.

What Your Baby Does at 3 Months of Age:

- Interacts with the world more with his cooing, gurgling, and facial expressions.
- Cries less.
- Protests when left alone. Prefers socializing.
- Responds to a greater variety of stimuli. Likes objects of different colors and textures.
- Enjoys toys that have different purposes--rattles, bouncing balls, cuddly toys, and so on.
- Reaches for objects and may grasp and hold them for a few seconds.
- Follows a slowly moving object with his eyes, especially one that moves from side to side. Turns head to keep the object in view.
- Leans on elbows while lying on stomach and holds head up.

Important Changes at 2 Months of Age:

- shows a broader range of feelings, including pleasure, anticipation, and unhappiness.
- Can now be soothed by the sound of a familiar voice and by being held.
